Welcome to the Parkette

The Parkette is a Lexington landmark and icon and we are proud to be a part of it.

Making History

Brothers Jeff & Randy Kaplan re-opened Parkette in March 2009.

August 10, 2009, was proclaimed as Parkette Day by the City of Lexington.

On September 20, 2010, Parkette was featured on the Food Network's Diner's, Dive-In's & Dives, with Guy Fieri.

In December 2013, Parkette's Famous Kentucky Poor Boy burger was voted #5, in The Food Networks, Diner's, Drive-In's & Dives, top 10 of ALL TIME!

On December 30, 2013, Parkette was featured on the Rachel Ray show. Randy was able to cook our Hot Brown Burger for Rachel Ray and Iron Chef Bobby Flay in front of a live audience.

We've had wonderful television documentaries on Secrets of Bluegrass Chefs and The Local Traveler.

In July 2013 we added 90 seats in our 1700 Sq. Ft. Retro 50's Dine In Garage to help accommodate our loyal customers.

In January 2015, Parkette's Famous Fried Chicken was voted #1, in Lexington, by Movoto Insider's, Tena Moore.

Not to mention many appearances on Television News and Cable, The Lexington Herald-Leader, Local Radio, Business Lexington Magazine, Tops In Lex Magazine, Southsider Magazine, a Chevrolet Commercial, Lane Reports Prep Magazine, Kentucky Monthly Magazine, VisitSouth.com, The World Equestrian Games Program, several movies, music videos and many other features across Kentucky.

All of these events were great honors to take part in and awesome experiences.

It is an honor to have re-opened the Parkette for the City of Lexington, and for nostalgia and Drive-In lovers everywhere.

Parkette's History

Parkette's founder, Joe Smiley was a pioneer and visionary. Joe opened Parkette on November 11, 1951

Joe created a double-decker hamburger called the "Poor Boy". Joe brought this burger idea with him from West Virginia. He named it after the lifestyle he saw there at that time. Joe said "When the coal strikes were on, every body was starving".

When Joe came to Lexington, he said "Lord God, this town's wide open for a drive-in". When Parkette was built, it was surrounded by nothing but dirt roads. His first night open, there was a rain storm and Joe was afraid the customers would get stuck in the mud, so he hired a tow truck driver to help folks get in and out.

We still use Joe's original Famous Fried Chicken and Hot Dog Chili Sauce recipe.

Our Story

Jeff and Randy Kaplan are the Co-Owners of the Parkette Drive-In Restaurant (2008).

Jeff and his wife Carol met while they were attending the University of South Florida, in Tampa. Jeff & Carol married in 1984. They moved to Lexington to open their 1st Subway Restaurant in 1992. Over the past 23 years, they have owned several different Subway Restaurants in & around Lexington. They have 2 daughters, Robyn & Samantha.

Randy graduated from Eastern Kentucky University, with a Law Enforcement Degree in 1984. After 20 years of service, Randy retired from the Lexington Police Department in 2005.

Randy first met his wife Kimberly, while he was at ECU. After many years apart, they reunited and married in 2011. Combined, they have 3 children, Billie Jean, Jake & Rachel.
